

Kimber P Richter, Ph.D., MPH

Professor, Department of Preventative Medicine and Public Health

Director of UKAN Quit, University of Kansas Hospital's Tobacco Treatment Service.

Dr. Richter is director of UKanQuit at KUMed, a bedside tobacco treatment service for hospital patients that has served over 10,000 patients since its inception in 2006, when the hospital campus went smoke free. Dr. Richter has over 75 publications, most focusing on tobacco control, and leads NIH-funded research on tobacco treatment. She also collaborates with a Federal University in Brazil on tobacco research. She has filled leadership positions in a number of national and local health organizations, including serving as President of the Association for Medical Education and Research on Substance Abuse, and a founding commissioner (program reviewer) for the Council for Tobacco Treatment Training Programs.